<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Code</th>
<th>All source code written specifically to process data for a published paper must be available to the reviewers and readers of the paper.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Copyright</td>
<td>The copyright ownership and license of any released source code must be clearly stated.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Citation</td>
<td>Researchers who use or adapt science source code in their research must credit the code’s creators in resulting publications.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Credit</td>
<td>Software contributions must be included in systems of scientific assessment, credit, and recognition.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Curation</td>
<td>Source code must remain available, linked to related materials, for the useful lifetime of the publication.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>